

Algeria Population: 32m 99% Sunni Muslim There is a 55% probability that the existing political system will remain intact in Algeria, according to Exclusive Analysis.

Tunisia
Populatio Population: 10m 98% Sunni Muslim Tunisia was the first domino to fall, and the revolution here resonated with a discontented generation across the Arab world.

Libya

Population: 6m 97% Sunni Muslim If Muammar Gaddafi falls, there could be more opportunities in the long term for foreign investment. Egypt

Population: 76m 90% Sunni Muslim The regime of Hosni Mubarak fell on 11 February, ending three decades of authoritarian rule.

Saudi Arabia

Population: 26m 5% Shia Muslim 95% Sunni Muslim Political instability is possible, but it plans to spend $37bn to calm social tensions.

ıdi Arabia

Yemen
Population: 20m 36% Shia Muslim 63% Sunni Muslim The most likely outcome in Yemen is that a tribal coup succeeds in ousting President Saleh from power.

Bahrain Population

Population: 0.678m 70% Shia Muslim 30% Sunni Muslim King Abdullah has made moves to violently suppress protesters. Saudi Arabia has also sent troops.

Oman
Population: 3m 2% Shia Muslim 21% Sunni Muslim Oman's economy is set to grow more slowly as a result of recent social unrest.

Qatar Popula Population: 0.84m 14% Shia Muslim 86% Sunni Muslim Oil-rich Qatar has one of the highest GDPs in the world, making civil unrest unlikely.

UAE Popul Population: 3m 16% Shia Muslim 80% Sunni Muslim Unrest is unlikely here, with living standards on a par leading Western European nations.